DEDICATION

With the realization that the legal profession has perhaps had more to do with the shaping of the destinies of nations than all other professions, and recognizing the high plane upon which the legal fraternity has been held from time immemorial, and being mindful of the fellowship and friendly feeling now existing among the judges and practicing attorneys of Greensboro; it is with a view to upholding, preserving, and perpetuating this high standard of leadership, service to mankind, and friendly spirit of the members of the Bar, that this book, The Greensboro Bar, is dedicated to the lofty principles and best traditions of the profession.

INTRODUCTION

One hundred and two Greensboro lawyers have joined this group. We have arranged their photographs in alphabetical order, two to the page. Each attorney, from his position on the page, is presented to the reader, by means of the attorney's biographical sketch, situated next to his portrait.

The sketches are stereotyped, and contain short, uniform summaries of the present status of each member. Past accomplishments were not included because of the limited space on each page.

The alphabetical sequence has been slightly modified in order that partners, with the same surname, usually father and son or brothers, might appear on the same page.

Other contents of the book deserve special mention.

Mr. C. Clifford Frazier, in his article on page 7, entitled "Historical Sketch of The Bar Association of Greensboro, N. C.", reaches into the past, to the year 1808, when we had only one lawyer in all of Guilford County, and traces our growth from that time to the present time which finds us with 173.

Mr. William E. Comer has penned the pleasing paragraph found on page 3, dedicating this book to the friendly spirit and lofty standards of our Bar and to their continued growth.

The index at the back should help each reader to quickly locate the photographs or the data desired; so may the table of contents at the front.

We have striven against many obstacles in the vain hope that this book would not go to press until it included a picture and a short life history of every active attorney in Greensboro. Boasting finally a representation of 90.3% of all Greensboro lawyers, we are forced to go to press after many months of waiting still a "pebble's toss" short of unanimity. To partially compensate for this deficiency, we have on page 61, included a complete alphabetical roster of the 114 known active attorneys practicing and living in our city.

Messrs. Vander Liles and Henry W. Pritchett of this city graciously contributed numerous helpful suggestions incident to compiling and arranging this material.

This is the first volume of its kind ever published here. There is unquestionably a strong present need for it. Because of its lofty objectives, unusual contents, and potential historical significance, we hope that this book may interest and benefit many of our fellow citizens and attorneys who choose to reside in this locality.

ROBERT A. MERRITT.

HISTORICAL SKETCH

OF

THE BAR ASSOCIATION OF GREENSBORO, N. C.

By C. CLIFFORD FRAZIER

When Guilford Court House was moved from the site of the Guilford Battle Ground to Greensboro in 1808, only one lawyer (James McNairy) resided in Guilford County. Now there are one hundred and seventy-three.

For many years the Bar of Guilford was composed of resident and non-resident lawyers, who regularly attended our courts. One of the first attorneys to settle here was Judge Archibald D. Murphy, whose residence was located on South Elm Street on the present site of the National Theatre. Chief Justice Ruffin, Governor Morehead, Governor Worth and many other distinguished lawyers completed their legal education in the law school conducted by Judge Murphy.

The notable members of the Guilford Bar who have rendered conspicuous service to their clients and to the public generally are too numerous to mention in this short sketch. Our bar has contributed seven members to the Supreme Court, five judges to the Federal Bench, and three governors of the State. From its resident and non-resident members it furnished a representative in Congress for more than half a century. It has the distinction of having on its roll the only North Carolinian to decline a cabinet appointment. Hon. John A. Gilmer declined a place in the cabinet of President Lincoln in 1861. Furthermore, Judge David Schenck declined to accept an appointment to the Supreme Court bench tendered him by Governor Jarvis. Judge Murphy's law school paved the way for other law schools in Guilford County. Hon. George C. Mendenhall established a law school at Jamestown, N. C., and Judge Robert P. Dick and Judge John H. Dillard conducted the Dick and Dillard Law School in Greensboro for about fifteen years. They prepared nearly three hundred young men for the legal profession.

When the beautiful, old court house that once stood at the corner of Elm and Market Streets gave way to our first skyscraper, the Jefferson Standard Building, and a new court house was completed on West Market Street in 1918, a great change had taken place in our bar. The increase in legal practice in Guilford County's two thriving cities required that a municipal court be established in High Point. Its jurisdiction became equal to that of the Superior Court. It was also necessary to increase the terms of the Superior Court and establish a municipal court in Greensboro. The lawyers could no longer sit in the shade of the elm trees that once surrounded the old court house and "swap yarns." The trees were gone and the lawyers' time had become too valuable. These new conditions and the large number of young lawyers practicing at our bar prompted those attorneys who had practiced between five and fifteen years to organize the Barristers Club on June 21, 1927, for the purpose of encouraging legal study, the maintenance of ethical standards of the Bar, the promotion of professional courtesy and primarily to stimulate interest in the organization of a Greensboro Bar Association.

On June 15, 1928, the Barristers Club invited all the members of the Greensboro Bar to a dinner at the Greensboro Country Club, and, on that occasion, a committee was appointed to draft a constitution and arrange for a future meeting.

On March 15, 1929, at the call of the committee on arrangements, the organization of the Bar Association of the City of Greensboro was completed. The objects of this association are set forth in its constitution as follows:

"This Association is established to encourage the assembly of its members at stated periods for the transaction of business conducive to the public good and their own welfare; to co-operate with the legislative, judicial and executive departments of government, in securing, administering and enforcing laws for the common weal; to aid in maintaining the honor and dignity of the profession of law; to promote legal science and the administration of justice; and to cultivate social intercourse among its members."
